

Prof. Dotan received her medical degree from the Sackler Faculty of Medicine in Israel. Her postdoctoral fellowship was at the Immunobiology Center, Mount Sinai Medical Center, New York. She is a specialist in internal medicine and in gastroenterology and liver diseases. Her clinical and research interests focus on biomarker-based stratification of patients with inflammatory bowel diseases and a personalized approach to their treatment and care, biologicals and novel therapies for inflammatory bowel disease.